He will execute it thoroughly. When it comes down to the question of statehood, to speak, John is one of the most obliging hypocrites you ever saw.

The greatest trouble we have to encounter is the refusal of the Cincinnati to believe that we have not denounced Mr. Hayes since that eminent statesman dipped his knee-ape to John Sherman.

VIRGINIA has just reduced the number of her representatives from 132 to 100; of her senators from 43 to 40. The former are elected by two and the latter by four years. Most of the states are endeavoring to reduce their expenditures.

APRIL, Mr. Hayes is a very shrewd man. He has decided not to give his support to Devens to the public, and there is now nothing except hearsay evidence to show that any such letter was ever written. To be brief, Mr. Hayes has bravely recovered from his fright.

WELLS, Keener and Cassanova hope to be tried by the United States courts. It is said that Hayes and Sherman are old man Evans' friends, and that they are in the jury. Then the world would know the unfortunate criminals are still innocent.

We are inclined to believe with the administration that the prosecutions against the returning board of Louisiana are altogether willful. The sentence that gives Anderson only two years in the penitentiary is very nearly a burlesque of justice.

It seems to be settled that Mr. Hayes' cabinet is adverse to the other trial of the returning board. Hayes and Sherman are old man Evans' friends, and that they are in the jury. Then the world would know the unfortunate criminals are still innocent.

Even old man Evans has time to turn from his railroad cases to remark to the amiable executive that, as in the Beecher case, he wants his objection noted.

It is about time for the Hon. Sam Carey to retire from politics. Greenback is a good enough thing in his hands, but if the business is to be run by Blanton, Duncan, Brick Pomeroy and Sam Carey, it is well to cut enough cups of cold water in their direction to give the country a rest.

Now that Blanton, Duncan, Sam Carey and Brick Pomeroy have crowded their way into the greenback party, we might as well admit Eli Perkins, Dr. May Walker and Governor Sam B. B. It is to be made a truly popular party, inhabitants of every section of the country, without regard to their convictions, should be invited to front seats.

Orders have been issued to the directors of the mint to be ready to commence operations for the coinage of silver within the next fifteen days. This has been held to be a sign that the president will either sign the silver bill or permit it to become a law; but it may mean that the president knows it will become a law, veto or no veto.

That Mr. Hayes is a true reformer there can be no sort of doubt. Although Anderson is a convicted felon, he still retains his place in the New Orleans custom house. If Wells is elected, Mr. Hayes will do well to appoint him as minister to England, or to some other office of trust and profit. As political economists and patriots, we cannot treat our knaves too tenderly.

Gus Belmont, the man who managed to defeat the democratic party in two campaigns, is said to be going to Washington for the purpose of using his influence to prevent the passage of the silver bill over the veto. If "influence" means money, Gussey has a good deal, but if it means moral or mental power, he hasn't got enough to overcome the hair of one bald-headed congressman.

A SPECIAL Washington dispatch to the Nashville Banner, dated the 25th inst., says: The president's veto message will be a very mild and conciliatory document, in which he will set forth his reasons for his action in language which can give offense to none, and which is calculated to win the approval of all. He does not expect to stop the silver bill or block the wheels in any particular. He knows full well that it will pass over his veto just as it has.

COMMISSIONER GENERAL McCormick corrects the statement that he has been allotted additional space for the United States at the Paris exposition, and that he is erecting a special building at his own expense. He is putting an annex upon a plot of land originally granted, and is paying for it from the congressional appropriation. The space in this annex was all allotted some time ago, and there will be no more for new exhibitors. The freighting capacities of the government ships Constitution, Supply and Mercury being insufficient for the goods offered for Paris, the United States ship Portsmouth has been placed at the disposal of the commissioner general. The latter will be loaded this week with the Constitution and Supply have sailed for Havre. Gov. McCormick deserves commendation for the enterprise he has shown in this matter, starting late as he did, on account of the delays interposed by congress.

THE CINCINNATI SOUTHERN. It will be remembered by those who are closely watching the progress of the new road leading from Cincinnati to the heart of the cotton belt, that the Cincinnati chamber of commerce appointed a committee of thirteen to consider the best means of completing the road. Their report was submitted last week. It contains many interesting facts. The consulting engineer of the road says it will cost $1,968,310 to finish the work, and the general superintendent says $1,641,189 would be sufficient. The trustees think the former sum would complete the road and supply such terminal facilities as would be sufficient for the next five years. The trustees are divided in opinion in regard to the time which will be required for the work, varying in their individual opinions between six months and eighteen months. The committee of the chamber of commerce are never satisfied that if money is supplied so that work may be commenced in the coming April, the road can be finished for use before the first day of next January. In view of these facts the committee agree with the trustees that two million more of city bonds should be issued with which to complete the road. They believe that a lease of the road in an incomplete shape, would be a great cost to the city that has ventured so many millions, and that has so much at stake in a fair and liberal operation of the road when completed. They submitted a memorial to that effect, addressed to the Ohio legislature, which is now in session. Prompt action will doubtless be had, and the needed legislation speedily secured.

REVENUE MILLION STARTING. Owing to a climatic change during the past two centuries, the northern provinces of China have lost to a considerable extent their capacity for sustaining life. These provinces are Chihli, Shanai and Kanah. They contain fully 70,000,000 of human beings. The climatic change has greatly wasted the watercourses, and famines have been of frequent occurrence since 1851, on account of drought. Famine and insurrection have oftentimes assisted the prevailing want of moisture. The latter, however, generally springs from the destitution caused by drought. The great Taping rebellion originated in that way.

No insurrection at present exists in these northern provinces, but a famine of unusual severity is prevailing among their seventy millions of people. The failure of crops does not extend over the broad empire, but the want of commodities, and the central authority almost powerless to relieve the suffering millions. There are no railroads and but few highways. The canals are confined to the river courses and their tributaries, and they are altogether inadequate. In some of the provinces no vehicles drawn by animals are used, the products of field or workshop being carried to market on the shoulders of human beings. In the suffering provinces clumsy two-wheeled carts, drawn by bullocks or mules, are employed to some extent, though they offered no adequate means of conveying food to communities whose local crops have failed. It is authoritatively stated that the entire population of these extensive and crowded provinces are in a state of starvation. Millions must perish, if this be true.

POOR SHOWS AND HIGH PRICES. There is a general movement in the larger cities, both at the north and south, to reduce the price of reserved seats in places of amusement to one dollar. Whether this movement is successful or not depends altogether upon the unanimity of those who have to pay the assessment. As a general thing complaints come with bad grace from those who have the remedy in their own hands, and who can apply it quickly and effectually. One night's experience with rows of empty benches would satisfy theatrical managers that it would be better to lose the profit represented by the extra tax of fifty cents upon each reserved seat than to lose the price of the seat itself. Theatre-goers have merely to remain away from places of amusement more than one dollar is charged for reserved seats. Individual complaint amounts to nothing so long as the people persist in submitting to the financial arrangements of managers. If there is to be a reform it must be brought about by concerted action on the part of those who are in the habit of attending theatres.

UPON the occasion of the appearance of our boards of Mr. Augustin Daly's dramatic combination, headed by Miss Fanny Davenport, the management shrewdly took advantage of the opportunity that presented itself, reserving a number of the most eligible seats and selling them at the door at an advance of fifty cents each. This was decidedly a stroke of business, and was successful. But the people grumbled somewhat because, in the first place, they thought the method employed was wrong, and because, in the second place, they discovered that Miss Davenport was developed in the warm rhetoric of little Willie Winter and the other Bohemians of the quill who make dramatic criticism a specialty, is not always dispassionate and discriminating. They will come to learn, moreover, that provincial people are not compelled to pay money upon recommendations that the New York papers may find it convenient to manufacture.

AT this point it would scarcely be considered irrelevant to discuss the peculiarities of the haberdashery critics who write for the New York papers, but it is per se unnecessary. Their method are simple, even to fastidiousness. Miss Davenport, with her elegant wardrobe, is dearer to them than Miss Anderson with her native genius. Southern readers will gradually come to learn that approval developed in the warm rhetoric of little Willie Winter and the other Bohemians of the quill who make dramatic criticism a specialty, is not always dispassionate and discriminating. They will come to learn, moreover, that provincial people are not compelled to pay money upon recommendations that the New York papers may find it convenient to manufacture.

The car dealers of the port of New York have a total of 4,000 cars. The port has an empty treasury and owes $1,300,000 to England, Austria and France. England is a creditor to the port of $800,000. The port is not decidedly bankrupt, and the car will probably take real estate and iron-clads for his claim.

He who attempts to defeat the deliberate purpose of so many of the states, and so many of the people, and so many of the members of the national legislature, becomes an usurper. The national convention of the United States export trade, being composed of about 100 members, is naturally a high authority on the questions it deals with. But when it asks us what to export and how to export it, and recommends the establishment of a new cabinet office, with a new bureau of export trade, it is an evanescent materialization which was not intended to be taken seriously.—St. Louis Evening Post, rep.
